

The 160th International Training Course
“The State of Cybercrime: Current Issues and Countermeasures”

1. Duration and Participants

- From 13 May to 18 June 2015
- 22 overseas participants from 16 countries
- 7 domestic participants

2. Programme Overview

The spread and development of information and communications technologies has led to new and emerging forms of crime, including technically sophisticated and complicated cybercrimes. Offences that were historically committed in person are now committed by using the Internet, and the damage caused by cybercrime continues to expand. Moreover, cybercrimes are easily committed beyond national borders. In order to effectively investigate, prosecute and adjudicate cybercrime cases, it is indispensable to strengthen the capacity of criminal justice personnel and to facilitate broad cooperation with the private sector, which has great knowledge in this field, and also with investigative and prosecutorial agencies in other countries.

Therefore, the aim of this training course is that participants will gain the basic knowledge and techniques necessary for tackling cybercrime and will share the knowledge, experiences and best practices regarding public-private and international cooperation. Moreover, they will learn to recognize the threats and characteristics of cybercrime, which will ultimately improve the investigation, prosecution and adjudication of cybercrime.
